New regulations came into force on 25 May 2018. The General Data Protection Regulation – GDPR for short – replaces legislation in EU countries and means that anybody holding data on individuals has to be more open about what they hold and why. The rules apply to all organisations, including the Foundation of Joanna Scott and Others. In order to keep your name on our files, we will need your written permission to hold your contact information. We guarantee to hold this information securely and will not pass it on to any other body, using it solely to contact you regarding your application.

- I agree for the Foundation of Joanna Scott and Others to hold my details
